The theme of the 11th Pre-Summit is "The Industrialization of the African continent: the gender perspective" as well as monitoring progress made in the implementation of the SDGEA.

II. Background

Member States of the African Union (AU) marked a new beginning in the history of the gender agenda in Africa through the adoption at the Addis Summit meeting in July 2004 of the Solemn Declaration on Gender Equality in Africa (SDGEA). Calling for the full promotion and protection of women's rights at the national and regional level, the SDGEA marks the ownership by a continental organization of an unprecedented achievement towards gender-mainstreaming at the highest level, prioritizing issues such as HIV/AIDS, the recruitment of child soldiers, and the implementation of gender-specific economic, social, and legal measures.

Following the adoption of the SDGEA, women's civil society networks assembled on numerous occasions to further the work of mainstreaming gender in the AU. In July 2005, during the 6th Pre-Summit Consultative Meeting on Gender Mainstreaming in the AU held in Tripoli, African women's networks committed themselves to launching an advocacy campaign on the SDGEA by finalizing the "Civil Society Framework for Monitoring and Evaluating the Solemn Declaration". These women's organizations further agreed to share monitoring responsibilities, a decision reflected in an official document entitled "Memorandum of Understanding arising from the Tripoli Commitment for Monitoring, Evaluating and Reporting on the Implementation of the Solemn Declaration".

Women's organizations subsequently convened in Dakar, in October 2005 with the Minister of Women and Gender Issues of the Government of Senegal, during the Civil Society Organizations Meeting prior to the First African Union Conference of Ministers Responsible for Women and Gender. The "Dakar Strategic Partnership", which was the 7th Pre Summit's address to AU member States and the AU Commission held in Dakar, October 2005, regrouped and updated the work that had began in previous Consultative Meetings. Its focus was aimed at pursuing the involvement of civil society in the monitoring and evaluation of the SDGEA as well as obtaining a solemn commitment from AU Member States to involve civil society organizations in such processes. The incorporation of the African Women Committee on Peace and Development (AWCPD) into the mechanisms of the AU demonstrated the achievements of the advocacy work undertaken by women civil society organizations.

At the most recent Consultative Meeting, which took place in Banjul, Gambia in June 2006, women's networks and organizations officially launched the "Gender is my Agenda" Campaign. In addition to evaluating the Campaign network programme, the meeting was used as a tool to strengthen the monitoring, reporting and advocacy strategies and mobilize the involvement of different actors in the gender mainstreaming agenda.

The adoption of the SDGEA in 2004 was the result of a long process characterized by the tireless work and achievements accomplished by African women's networks under the initiative of the AWCPD. This involved a sequence of Consultative Meetings which were held with African women's organizations in the following locations: Durban, June 2002; Dakar, April 2003; Maputo, June 2003; Addis Ababa, June 2004; Abuja, January 2005; Tripoli, July 2005, Dakar 2005; and Banjul, June 2006; Addis Ababa, January 2007; Accra, June 2007.

Key documents that were adopted during these consultations include the "Durban Declaration on Mainstreaming Gender and Women's Effective Participation in the African Union"; the "Dakar Strategy"; the "Maputo Declaration"; the "African Women's Contribution to the Declaration on Mainstreaming Gender in the African Union"; the "Abuja Recommendations for Civil Society Monitoring and Evaluation of the Solemn Declaration"; the "Tripoli Commitment"; the "Dakar Strategic Partnership"; and the "Banjul Declaration" and the "Banjul Resolution"

III. Rationale

Although the AU has made significant progress over the years with respect to women's issues and its decisions and declarations have moved forward the women's agenda, much work remains. While mechanisms, such as the AWCPD, have been created to advocate and oversee implementation of various recommendations made by women, attention must be focused on ensuring the effective implementation of their mandates.

Civil society organizations must continue to be involved in the monitoring and evaluation of the implementation of the SDGEA. In addition, opportunities must be created to facilitate dialogue and the revision of strategies on gender mainstreaming within the AU.

In this regard, the network of women's organization members of the "Gender is my Agenda" Campaign have agreed to convene the 11th Consultative Meeting in Addis Ababa, in January 2008. The meeting will bring together the focal points of the Campaign and other participating organizations to move forward processes for monitoring and reporting on the implementation of AU Member States of the SDGEA.
